Travelling distances and timings can also affect product workability at point of laying as bituminous materials burn off volatiles and become less flowable. Therefore, it is important that you contact your Area Business Manager as early as possible when planning project deliveries to ensure destinations can be assessed and risks mitigated as best as possible, however IKO will not accept liability for the following on all deliveries (other than a maximum limit of credit for the charges of a delivery invoice).

Consequential loss or costs incurred because of:

- material being unworkable either prior to delivery or at any time upon arrival on site and during the installation
- a breakdown of IKO machinery either prior to delivery or at any time upon arrival on site and during installation
- insufficient time to allow the material supplied to cool sufficiently before opening to vehicular traffic at the specified time.

The contractor must realise the risks associated with the above and take appropriate action such as but not limited to 'temporary infills,' 'assisted cooling' to ensure obligations under the contract such as 'road opening times' can be adhered to. IKO accepts no responsibility for any charges/costs incurred because of material supplied/ not supplied.

All hot charge orders should be placed as early as possible to allow time to consider product manufacture and specialist haulage arrangements. All requests are subject to availability at time of placing the order and IKO will confirm acceptance.

IKO ROCK

FABRICATED ITEMS / MADE TO ORDER (ACOUSTIC INFILLS, ANGLE FILLETS, TAPERED, UB34, NON-STANDARD ROOF BOARD, IKO MW UPSTAND BOARD)

If the order is of a flat board only nature, and these are standard, stocked items then we operate a 4 working days (minimum) notice policy in respect of amending or cancelling with no charges being applied. If this is less than 4 working days to delivery then cancellation charges will be applied and if there is a specialist vehicle (flat bed, roll top, moffett) requested then a charge may be applied for the cancellation of this in addition.

Should this be postponed within the 4 working days window then the storage charge for the material can be applied at £100 per day, per load for the storage, plus the charge for any specialist vehicle that may have been requested.

The lead time for these items is typically 20 working days. So where the materials are of a made to order nature, we operate a minimum of 10 working day notice for cancellation or adjustment without charge.

If we are advised an order of this nature is delayed, then from the requested/due date of delivery until the re-confirmed delivery date, the charges apply at £100 per day, per load for storage.

Again if there is a specialist vehicle required the charges could be applied for the cancellation/postponement of this element also.
